Contract catering firm Bucknalls is preparing to make its first forays into garden centres after recognising them as an ideal host to grow its versatile catering service in a new direction. Bucknalls specialises in providing a complete, bespoke catering service with an emphasis on local produce that is individually tailored to suit each of its clients.

It has an impressive track record serving a broad range of clients including the Building Research Establishment facility in Hertfordshire, the Prime Minister's Office, M&S and even royalty. "When we discovered the Bucknalls catering experience last year, we immediately saw the potential this offering could have in garden centres," said Keith McIntyre. "Bucknalls allows garden centres to outsource the complication and cost of providing a catering experience to customers by providing a full front- and back-of-house service, working closely with garden centre owners to build a menu and ambience that meets – and exceeds – their specific needs."
